

Edna Rose Bouquet Reed

March 8, 1916 ~ June 24, 2007

Longtime King William resident Edna Rose Bouquet Reed died Sunday morning, June 24, at Alterra Sterling House where she had been living for the past year. Just a little over a year ago, she celebrated her 90th birthday with a dance party. Although she was in the midst of a health crisis at the time, she danced all evening in her gold lamé gown and vowed that she'd be dancing for at least another year.

Edna Rose grew up in Prospect Hill on San Antonio's near West Side where many railroad families lived in the 1920's and 30's. Her father, Arthur Bouquet, was a railroad express messenger. After the railroad families began moving away from Prospect Hill, the neighborhood began to change and Edna Rose's father began looking for a new home for his family. In 1934, he found that home at 432 King William, which he bought before the rest of the family had even seen it. Edna Rose said that when her mother saw what her husband had bought, she sat on the curb and cried just thinking about all the work involved in making the run-down house livable. The house was built by J. M. & Birdie Nix in 1900. They also built the twin house next door at 434 King William and later the Nix building downtown, now called the Nix Hospital.

Edna Rose and her twin brother, Art Jr., attended Brackenridge High School. After they graduated, Art joined the Army Air Corps and Edna Rose enrolled in Johnson's Beauty School. The next year she became a hair stylist, a profession she would practice for the next twenty-five years.

During the WWII years, San Antonio was crowded with service men. Young, pretty and vivacious, Edna Rose loved to dance and never lacked for beaux but she continued to live at home under her mother's watchful eye. Edna Rose once commented that she would work all day and dance all night.

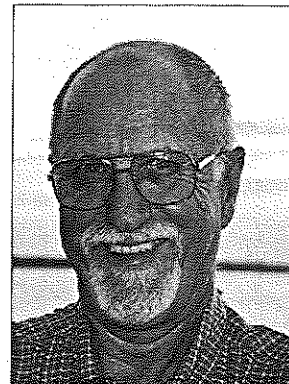

Soon after Edna Rose's family settled in King William, another Prospect Hill railroad family, the Burkholders, moved to Madison Street. Edna Rose had grown up with Mary and Dorothy Burkholder and they continued to be her life-long friends. Mary Burkholder went on to write two books depicting King William homes and their history. These books are still available at the KW office.

For several years, Edna Rose operated The Bouquet Beauty Salon in her carriage house on King William Street. She once commented that she had a thousand customers in her heyday. She professed to be the fastest hair stylist in the city. She said that she could turn out a customer in no time flat and she'd be beautiful.

Every Thursday morning for twenty-five years, she joined other Conservation Society members at the River House behind the Steves' Homestead to make flowers and decorations for NIOSA.

At 5 a.m., on January 1, 1948, Edna Rose married Bob Teeter at St. Mary's Church. She wanted to be certain that she was the first bride of the New Year. Bob, a Navy man, was stationed at various locations around the country, during which time Edna Rose lived off and on at the family home on King William Street. Bob died in 1960. Edna Rose married a second time to Bob Reed, who died in the mid-1990's. For the next several years, Edna Rose continued to live out her life alone in the house that she loved.

Always a social person, Edna Rose once held membership in twenty-two organizations. She was still active in about a dozen when she died. Every Thursday morning for twenty-five years, she joined other Conservation Society members at the River House behind the Steves' Homestead to make flowers and decorations for NIOSA.

New Tree for King William Park

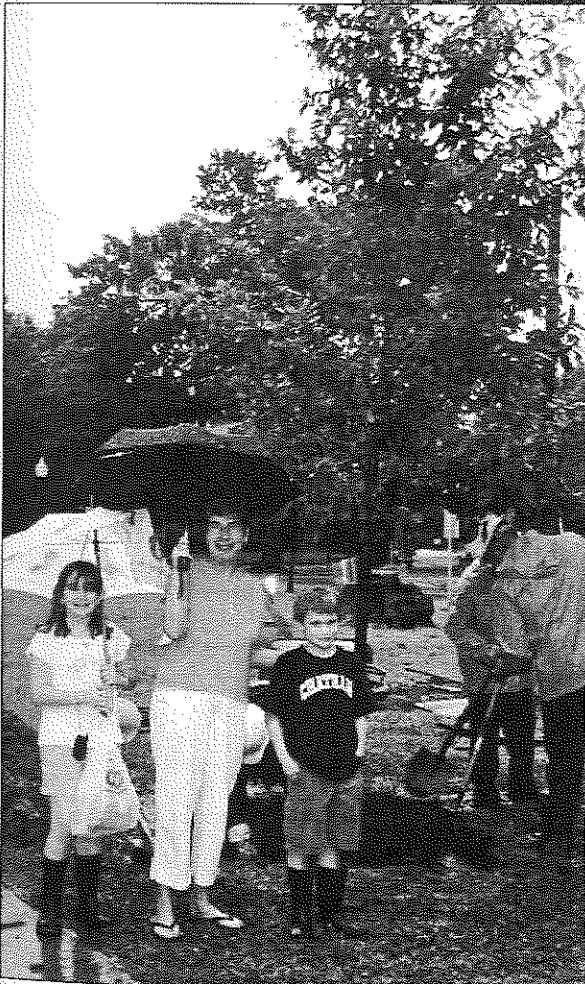

King William Park is the proud recipient of a very nice Monterrey oak! The tree is a gift from Bartlett Tree Experts, a national company that is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year. To carry out the company's centennial theme, "Celebrating Service to our Community," Bartlett is donating one tree to each city where it does business, and maintaining the tree for one year. After consulting with the Parks and Recreation Department,

Tree dedication ceremony

Bartlett selected King William Park to receive the "San Antonio tree." Bartlett representatives thought the historic and picturesque park was a perfect location! Cheers go to the workers who planted the tree in a downpour, braving lightning and thunder. Many thanks go to Bartlett Tree Experts and its local manager, John Worrell, for this wonderful donation. Thanks also to City Forester Michael Nentwich of the Parks and Recreation Department, and Mark Bird, arborist with the Development Services Department, for helping to coordinate the effort. Make sure to visit the tree at the corner of Washington and Turner Streets!

Out in the Garden with Alan Cash

The rain began on June 14, and up to the time of this writing I have had over 8 inches of rain in my rain gauge. Hope your garden got as much.

Summer is here, along with warmer temperatures, humidity, and mosquitoes. Continue to conserve water. Remember, there is a year round prohibition of watering with any type of sprinkler between 10 AM and 8 PM. Dig down a couple of inches before watering and if the soil is still moist, do not water. We can not be too careful with our water supply. If you see someone habitually wasting water, call it in. Businesses can be especially bad about washing down concrete aprons and sidewalks. The SAWS number is 704-7297.

Early August is the time to trim roses back about one fourth to stimulate branching for more fall blooms. After the trimming, feed them with a water-soluble rose food every two to three weeks. However this does not apply to climbing roses. For them wait until after they bloom next spring.

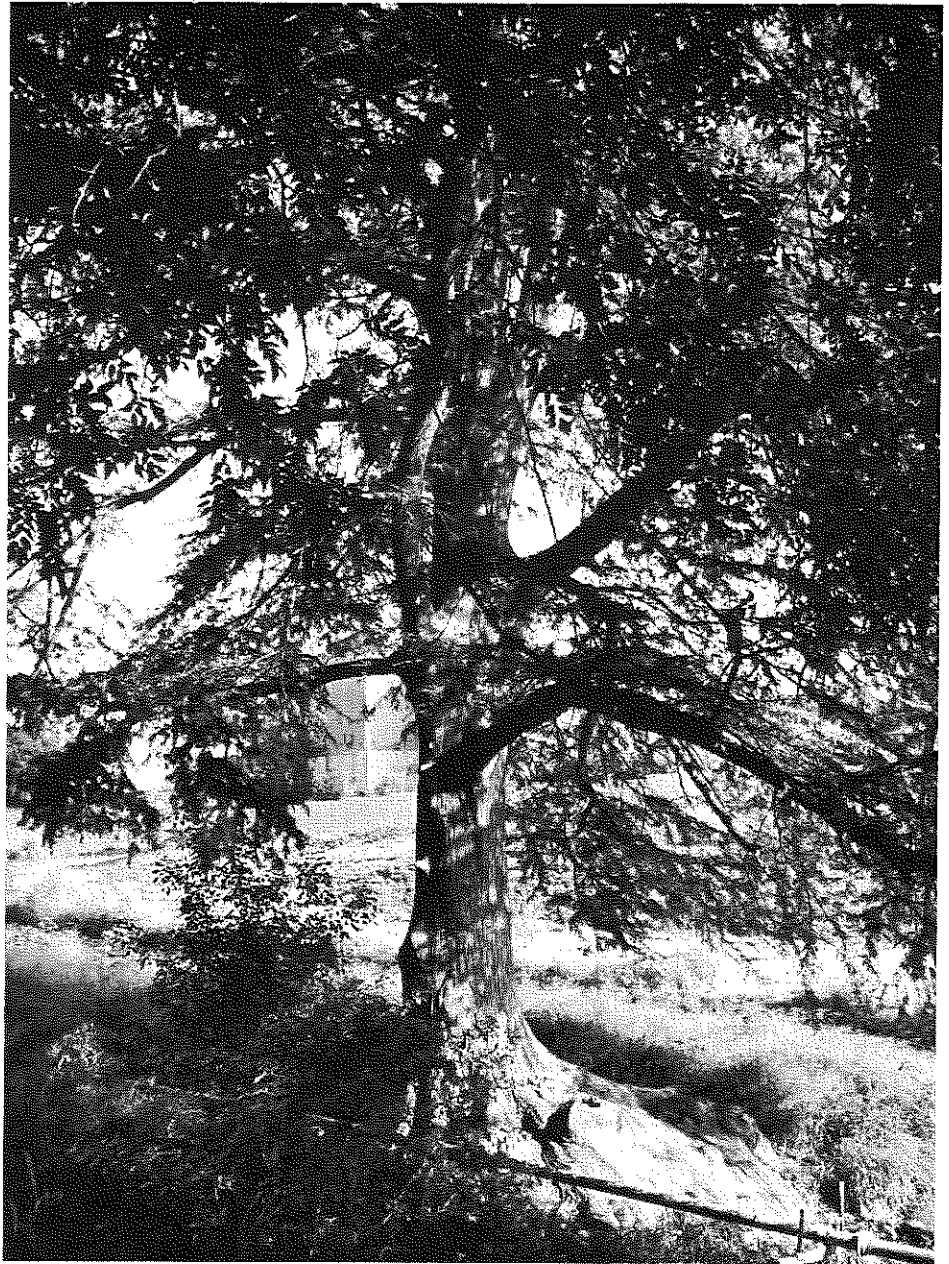

Shrubs and perennials can also be trimmed in August to keep them in bounds. New growth will harden off before the first frost and plants such as salvias will have more fall blooms. Impatiens and geraniums can also be trimmed to encourage more abundant blooms.

Here is another good landscape plant for the garden. The split-leaf philodendron is drought tolerant once established, evergreen, does well in reduced sunlight, and will grow to about 3 to 5 feet tall and wide. The leaves are a dark green and resemble an elephant's ear with notches. It adds a tropical look to any landscape and can be planted in the ground or a container that is at least 16 inches tall and wide. You can see examples of the split-leaf around the C. H. Guenther sign at the Pioneer Flour Mill at Guenther and King William Streets.

Take time to go by and see a beautiful addition to the local environment. The San Antonio Art League at 130 King William Street has recently reworked their garden with new plants and walkways. Interspersed in the area are exhibits of works of art. A visit would be time well spent.

Not more about crepe myrtles! Yes there is always something more to say about this plant. Check out the 2 Natchez crepe myrtles growing at the curb at 322 Mission Street. As they mature, the bark of some varieties peel off exposing their cinnamon-colored trunks. Many grow crepe myrtles especially for this characteristic. They are very striking in winter when plants are dormant and lose their leaves.

Garden Note: As the garden grows, so does the gardener.

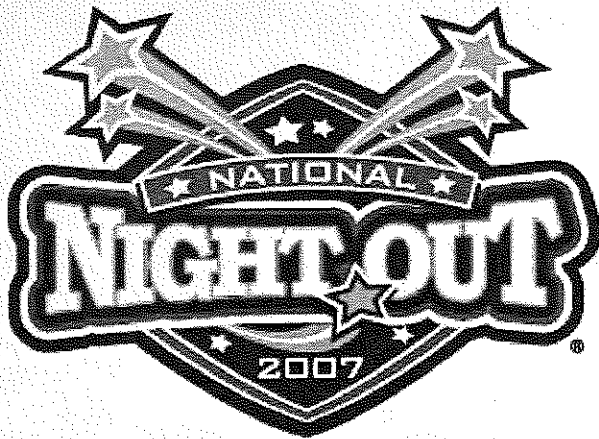

King William cypress tree.

Thank you, Mrs. Johnson.

While many in the nation were saddened by the death on July 11 of Claudia Taylor (Lady Bird) Johnson, we here in King William have our own particular, if little known, connection to her legacy, and our own reason to mourn her passing. According to Henry Rayburn, longtime resident of the Gething carriage house, Mrs. Johnson played a crucial role in saving the stand of cypress trees on the San Antonio River downstream of the S. Alamo Street Bridge. Margaret Gething, also known as Miss Margaret, was unwilling to accept the destruction, for the sake of river improvements, of the magnificent old trees behind her beloved home on E. Guenther, and so she and other neighborhood advocates orchestrated a campaign to save them. Miss Margaret communicated the plight of the trees to the First Lady of the United States, Mrs. Johnson, who lent her support to the cause, and the Army Corps of Engineers was persuaded to leave the trees untouched.

You Must Be an Old-Timer If You Remember

. . . . O'Neil Ford had lunch in our restaurant every day for years. One morning, he came in early to speak to my husband, Julian. "I'm going to be bringing some important people for lunch today", he said. "They're from Europe and they're considering me for a big commission so I want everything to be really special."

The food was good and the service attentive. When presented with the check, Ford pulled out his check book and wrote out a check for the meal adding a generous gratuity, all done with a flourish. My husband took the check, then leaned close to Ford's ear and whispered loud enough for everyone at the table to hear, "Mr. Ford, do you want me to hold this check for two weeks like last time?"

My husband was always joking. It didn't matter who they were.

FOOD NOTES: The Humble Sandwich as "Cuisine"

Though its origins are humble, the lowly sandwich can be much more than just a quick, convenient way to grab a bite, not that there is anything wrong with that. But as early as 1840

Elizabeth Leslie, in her "Directions for Cookery," noted that a properly made ham sandwich was a perfectly suitable entrée.

Before the invention of the fork, bread was used to pick up food and to sop up juices, and even today if you dine in an Ethiopian restaurant you are given a big, round bread, thin as a crepe, to use instead of utensils. In Europe, the fork made eating with your hands uncouth, at least until the 4th Earl of sandwich, so the legend goes, got the bright idea in the eighteenth century, to stick meat between two slabs of bread so that he could eat with one hand and gamble with the other...and the rest is history.

From such a chance, simple beginning the sandwich has morphed into delectable meals when you use your imagination. Take the "Siena," for example,

Start with a foundation of good, flavorful bread, like focaccia. The dough is made for pizza dough, with a light yeast rise, topped with rosemary and often other herbs; it has had indentations poked in it before it's baked allowing it to readily absorb sauces and juices. This is the standard bread used for sandwiches in Northern Italy and is available at local bakeries.

A good quality chicken breast, marinated to give it moisture then grilled, comes next, topped by fresh mozzarella and whole leaf fresh basil. Sun-dried tomato pesto sauce in house, which gives it an extra kick of flavor as the spread on the bread. There is something about sun-dried tomatoes that enhance almost any food.

This is when a sandwich is more than a sandwich...it becomes an art form

King William Association's ACCD Brackenridge Scholarship Award Recipients

KWA is proud to announce that all three of last year's recipients have successfully completed their first year of college and have renewed their scholarship for 2007-08. In addition, we have been approved to allocate five new two-year scholarships, instead of only three, for a total of eight scholarships for the 2007-2008 school year. We have been growing steadily each year, due to the hard work and success of the KW Fair, led by Fair Chair Rose Kanusky.

Our scholarship committee, who made the selections, is very committed to our new Mentorship Program. Members will maintain monthly contact with the scholarship recipients and offer academic and moral support, in an effort to have a 100% graduation rate from ACCD. The mentors include Chairperson Noemi Cue and members Johnnie Heidelberg, Nancy Diehl, Beverly Schwartzman, and Jim Nelson.

Hope to see you at the Scholarship Award Ceremony on August 1 (see back page for more info) to celebrate this year's recipients. Read below about the scholarship program's recipients!

New Students for 2007-08

Shawntique Lewis

"Throughout my high school career, I've been in many organizations. I was the Drum Major in Band and play all brass instruments. I was also in choir, the Environmental Club, Interact Club, All District Mariachi, Mariachi Aguila, and many other organizations. My goals are to study at SAC to pursue a degree in Music Education. After I finish my two years at SAC, I plan to transfer to Hardin Simmons College in Abilene, Texas, where I will get my music education degree and be a music teacher and band director and minor in computer science."

Lisa Balderas

"In high school I was in the Ready, Set, Teach Program. I assisted a teacher in her classroom for my entire senior year and since then I knew that I wanted to go into the field of education. I plan to attend San Antonio College and then transfer to UTSA. My career goal is to become a teacher."

Markus Allen Hernandez

"I grew up playing sports. In school, I played varsity football and baseball. I also like to box and hopefully enter the Golden Gloves. I plan to attend UTSA after SAC and become a music producer. I was in the media program at Brackenridge HS. I have three brothers and one sister. I want them to be proud of me."

Joshua Herrera

"I would like to get my two year certificate in Automotive Technology. I would like to follow in my father's footsteps. I've learned a lot from him about cars. I would like to major in business so that maybe one day I can start a business of my own. I have held a job at Bill Miller's for 2 years and would like to continue working, while I'm in college."

"I am very grateful for the KWA scholarship. Because of it, I have been fortunate enough not to have any financial problems." Veronica Hernandez, scholarship recipient

Renewal Students for 2007-08

Erica Contreras

"Last year in college was a little different than high school at Brackenridge HS. I was more on my own and didn't have all my friends that I had in high school. I got through it and did what I had to do. I am interested in the nursing program at St. Phillip's. I will first complete my LVN license at St. Phillip's College and then pursue my RN degree from UTSA. I am currently working at the Downtown Baptist Hospital as a Certified Nurse's Assistant and getting some good experience. I work 3 days and go to school 3 days. I am also a single parent of a 1 and ½ year old and get help from my mom for babysitting. The KWA scholarship has been a great honor and help because I wasn't expecting to get anything in the way of scholarships. My advice to the new students is to find someone to study with and stay focused. You will not get to know very many of the students in your classes."

Veronica Hernandez

"Last year I had a pretty good year. I am working on completing my LVN and would like to get my RN degree at St. Phillip's College. I am currently working part time at a restaurant and will do hospital volunteering to get a feel for the medical field. My advice to students is to get some experience in your major in the way of volunteering to make sure that you have chosen the right career for yourself. Take advantage of the free services that the school offers like tutoring. This was very helpful to me. I had many hours of tutoring. I also had someone help me with questions I had on my assignments. I am very grateful for the KWA scholarship. Because of it, I have been fortunate enough not to have any financial problems."

Georgiana Hernandez

"Last year was pretty good. It can be stressful with work and school. I worked at H-E-B about 25 hrs. per week to help out with my expenses. I advise new students to stay on track. Try as hard as you possibly can. If you have trouble and need help don't hesitate to ask. I got help from the math lab with my homework and to study for exams. Also, don't schedule your classes back to back. Leave an hour or 2 between your classes to study and finish homework. The KWA scholarship has been very helpful in paying for my expenses. I plan to be an optometrist after I complete my coursework at the University of Houston. "
